

THE SOUTHERNER
TARBORO', SATURDAY, MAR. 17, 1866

President Johnson as Described by an Enemy.—Mr. John D. Baldwin, member of Congress from Massachusetts, warns the Radicals, of whom he is one, that they must expect a terrible conflict in their war upon the President. Speaking of his 22d of February speech, Mr. Baldwin, with mingled awe and hate, delivers himself as follows:

"What the President said is before the country. How he said it, my poor words may fail to tell. For the first time I stood near and looked closely on the man. In the course of an eventful life I have seen many men of willful power and force, but never before have I looked on one so thoroughly embodying the evil spirit of revolution. It will not do to underrate Mr. Johnson. He is terribly in earnest and withal most vindictively cool. A thoroughly paced demagogue, his inconsequential logic, his egotism, his repetitions, his thorough belief in himself, and his popularity, are all elements of strength when he faces such assemblies as were arrayed about him yesterday. Andrew Johnson is an able man; how able, I never realized till yesterday. All results are involved in his policy. Had he a Cabinet as able and as desperate, the dire results which the near future would bring could hardly be named now. We stand on the verge of fierce strife, to meet which the country should gather its strength and gird up its loins. This man is no weak Buchanan, and he means to crush Congress or be crushed.

Shocking Affair.—Man Buried Alive.—A story has been floating about town for several days which seems incredible, but it has come to us from so many sources that we are hardly permitted to doubt it, though we have not yet been able to learn full particulars. We give the story as it comes to us, and leave our readers to take it with what grains of allowance they may.—The tale runs that a returned soldier was found frozen in the grove near Urbana, and taken into a barn, where he laid for several days before burial.—Soon after his interment, while some men were engaged in digging a grave, they heard strange sounds, which so frightened them that they left the cemetery in haste, under the impression that ghosts and goblins had taken possession of the city of the dead. Their wonderful story determined others to investigate the matter, and the grave of the soldier was opened, when the horrible discovery was made that he had been entombed alive, his body yet retaining some warmth, though the vital spark had fled. The noises that attracted attention are supposed to have been made by the victim in his desperate struggles to escape a fate too awful to contemplate.—Champion (Ill.) Union.

Young Lady Drowned.—The Lynchburg Republican gives the following particulars of the drowning of Miss Page, of Bedford county:

Miss Editha, daughter of John Page, Esq., living near Big Island, in Bedford county, was drowned in James river, near Waugh's Ferry, on the evening of the 28th ult. Miss Page, in company with her nephew, a boy some eight years old, was being taken over the river in a very small and badly constructed canoe. Two gentlemen were in the canoe, a Mr. Hudson rowing the little craft over, and the other rocking the unsteady vessel in a spirit of mischievous fun. His efforts to amuse himself with the lady's timid fears were but too effective, for the little boat was soon upset, and all it held were thrown into the cold and swollen stream. Mr. Hudson succeeded in saving the little boy, but the fair and lovely Miss Editha perished in the waves. At last accounts her body had not been recovered.

A modern writer gives the following enumeration of the expressions of a female eye:

"The glare, the stare, the sneer, the invitation, the defiance, the denial, the consent, the glance of love, the flash of rage, the sparkling of hope, the languishment of softness, the squint of suspicion, the fire of jealousy, and the lustre of pleasure." He might have added that melting tenderness with which she looks upon the love of a bonnet, and that of malignant joy with which she regards an old dress on a neighbor.
